IMPRISONMENT

The defendant is hereby committed to the custody of the United States Bureau of Prisons to be imprisoned for a total term of 12 months and 1 day.

The Court has considered and reviewed the Presentence Investigation Report ("PSR") and its factual findings with care. There being no objections to the PSR and its factual findings, other than the changes that the parties and the Court made at the hearing on January 14, 2011 to paragraph 3 on page 4, the Court will adopt those as its own. The Court has considered the sentencing guideline applications in the PSR. There not being any objections to those, the Court will adopt those as its own. The Court has also considered the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). Defendant Tracy Martinez` offense level is 29 and her criminal history category is VI, establishing a guideline imprisonment range of 151 to 188 months. Under rule 11(c)(1)(C) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, however, the Court accepts the plea agreement, which includes a specific sentence of 12 months and one day. The Court is satisfied that the agreed sentence departs for justifiable reasons. The Court notes that Martinez distributed and directed others to distribute heroin to a confidential source. The Court has carefully considered the guidelines, which counsel for a considerable sentence in this case, but in arriving at its sentence, the Court has taken into account not only the guidelines but other sentencing goals. Specifically, the Court has considered the guideline sentencing range established for the applicable category of offense committed by the applicable category of defendant. The Court believes, after careful consideration of the circumstances of this offense and the parties' agreement, that the punishment that is set forth in the guidelines is not appropriate for this sort of offense. The Court has also considered the kinds of sentences and ranges that the guidelines establish, and the Court agrees with the parties that a sentence of 12 months and 1 day reflects the seriousness of the offense and, perhaps most importantly in this case, where a confidential informant induced Martinez to resume using heroin and threatened her to encourage her to facilitate sales of heroin to him, promotes respect for the law and provides just punishment to a person whose main problem is her drug addiction. The Court is concerned about deterrence because of Martinez` criminal history as well as her addition to heroin, but it believes that, from a general deterrence standpoint, any person looking at this situation would not be inclined to follow Martinez` path, which is a path of addiction. Because of the unique circumstances of this case, and because of some of the things that the Court will impose as conditions of Martinez` supervised release, the Court believes that the sentence will provide sufficient deterrence. And while the circumstances clearly show Martinez is a drug dealer, it appears that Martinez` major problem is drug use. The Court therefore believes that this sentence is adequate to protect the public. The Court believes that its sentence provides Martinez with the education, training, and care to overcome the problems she has, because of some of the conditions it will impose as part of her supervised release. The Court therefore concludes that this sentence fully and effectively reflects each of the factors embodied in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). And while the Court's task as a trial court is not to come up with a reasonable sentence, but to balance the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors correctly, see United States v. Conlan, 500 F.3d 1167, 1169 (10th Cir. 2007)("[A] district court's job is not to impose a reasonable sentence. Rather, a district court's mandate is to impose a sentence sufficient, but not greater than necessary, to comply with the purposes of section 3553(a)(2).")(citation omitted), the Court believes that this sentence balances the factors in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) appropriately and is a reasonable sentence. The Court concludes that this sentence is sufficient without being greater than necessary to comply with the purposes set forth in the Sentencing Reform Act.

ш	The court makes the following recommendations to the Bureau of Frisons.
×	The defendant is remanded to the custody of the United States Marshal.
	The defendant shall surrender to the United States Marshal for this district:
	at on
	as notified by the United States Marshal.
